Anchorage Reentry Coalition

Reentry Simulation

Volunteers and Participants Needed!

What is a Reentry Simulation? An immersive educational and training experience designed to highlight challenges and system barriers faced by individuals transitioning from incarceration back into the community. Participants assume the identity of a recently released adult, detailing their background, living situation, and weekly tasks. These tasks must be completed to avoid violating supervised release conditions and risking reincarceration.

The simulation represents the first month post-release. Each 20-minute segment simulates a week, during which participants must navigate various stations representing essential services and obligations. These may include the DMV, Probation Office, Employers, Social Services, and Housing.

By engaging in this hands-on experience, participants gain insight into the complex obstacles returning citizens face, such as limited resources, intricate systems, and lack of support. The simulation aims to deepen understanding and inspire dialogue about criminal justice reform and reentry supports. Do you think you can successfully complete the Simulation, without returning back to Prison?

Who should attend? Anyone who works within or has experience with the Criminal Justice System in Alaska including; reentry workers, community service providers, case managers, treatment providers, tribal/native organizations, peer support specialists, 2nd Chance Employers, Transitional Houser's, Any Corrections', Court System, Public Safety Staff, Lived Experience.

Why should I attend? Successful Reentry is not something that happens automatically upon release from prison but has a greater chance of occurring if planned for accordingly. Attendees will learn firsthand how complex this process can be in Anchorage, learn more about the resource and services in the community, and participate in post-simulation dialogue and feedback.

Must Register in Advance, Space is Limited: Free for all Volunteers & Participants, Free Parking, Light Refreshments/Snacks Provided!
