

Anchorage/Matsu Reentry & Recovery Linkage Initiative (ARRLI)

ARRLI is a coordinated Request For Service funding and resource navigation system that provides flexible, one time financial assistance and/or community resource navigation to justice-involved individuals with substance use disorders during reentry (post-release) from incarceration.

Funds can be used to cover critical, time-sensitive needs, such as transitional/housing fees, transportation, treatment fees, and basic necessities that support access to recovery, when no other community funding is available, based on applications submitted by workforce and provider advocates.
